Peck's Bad Boy.

Peck's Son.

"Hello!" said the groceryman

to the bad boy, as he came in looking sick heart and all broken up. "How is your muscle this morning?"

"All right enough," said the boy,

with a look of inquiry, as wondering what would come next. "Why?"

"Oh, nothing, only I was going to grind the hatchet and some knives and things this morning, and I thought maybe you would like to go out in the shed and turn the grindstone for me to develop your muscles. Turning a grindstone is the healthiest thing a boy can do."

"That's all right enough said the bad boy, as he took up a sweet cracker, "but please take a good look at me. Do I look like a grindstone boy?

Do I resemble a good little boy who can't say no, and goes off and turns

a grindstone half a day for some old duffer who pays him by giving him a handful of green cruminals, or telling him he will be a man some day, and the boy goes off one way with a lame back, while the good man goes the other way with a sharp scythe and a chuckle at the softness of the boy?

You are mistaken in me. I have passed the grindstone period, and you will have to pick up another sardine who has never done circular work. Not any grindstone for Henery, if you please."

"You are getting too smart," said

the groceryman, as he charged a pound of sweet crackers to the boy's father. "You don't have to turn the

SOUTH KENTUCKIAN

CHAS. M. MEACHAM, Editor.
HOPKINSVILLE, AUG. 7, 1883.

There have been 12,000 deaths from cholera in Egypt, since the outbreak of the disease.

A Glasgow rooster is raising a gang of orphan turkeys, according to the veracious editor of the Times.

Charlie Ford, the murderer of Jesse James, has been arrested at Kansas City on an old indictment for the Blue-cut train robbery.

Hon. Montgomery Blair, of Maryland, who died a few days ago, was Postmaster General under Lincoln. He was 70 years of age and was born in Kentucky.

Cetewayo, King of Zululand, South Africa, was killed by insurgents a few days since. He left fifty wives to mourn his loss. A census of his children has not been taken.

So far as we have seen Dittoe is the only editor who has gotten off the "melon-colic" joke this season. Both the perpetrator and the joke were doing well at last accounts.

The Minnesota Democrats in convention assembled last week nominated a strong ticket, headed by W. W. McNair for Governor, and declared for a tariff for revenue only.

The Governor has ordered all the State troops into camp at Frankfort, from September 1st until the 5th, for military instruction and to assist in the inauguration of Gov. Knott.

A circus tent was blown down at Portsmouth, Va., and took fire in the storm and darkness. A number of persons had limbs broken and were frightfully bruised, but none killed outright.

The Democrats of Pennsylvania met in Convention last week and nominated Robt. Taggart for Auditor and Jas. Powell, for Treasurer. A platform declaring for a square deal, honest administration, low tariff and laboring men's rights was adopted and the utmost harmony prevailed.

An excursion from Baltimore to North Point, a summer resort ten miles distant, was gotten up July 24th, and while the people were waiting for a boat to return, a pier on which several hundred had congregated, gave way and over 70 lives were lost. Most of them were women and children.

The dead-lock in the New Hampshire legislature was broken last Thursday by the election of Austin F. Pike to the United States Senate for the six years beginning March 4th, 1885. He was elected on the 42nd ballot as a compromise candidate. He is a Republican, is 63 years old and has served in the lower house of Congress.

The Democrat has just found out why Knott made a speech at Big Spring, a little village in Breckinridge county. Here it was that once a young man by the name of J. Proctor Knott taught a country school, and here it was that his father worked at his trade, that of making shoes. It was a triumph, indeed, for the boy that taught school there to go back a triumphant candidate for governor of the State—Louisville Democrat.

Jas. Carey, the infamous informer in the Phoenix Park murder cases, was shot and killed by a man named O'Donnell, while he was landing from the steamer Melrose, at Port Elizabeth, South Africa. The English government had taken special pains to protect Carey, but O'Donnell had been chosen to dog his steps until an opportunity to take his life was afforded. The news of his death created great excitement in London. At Dublin the wildest delight was manifested.

Mr. Waterson concludes a well-written article on the Presidential outlook, in a recent issue of the Courier-Journal, as follows: "At present Mr. McDonald is the favorite of the field, and, thus far, there seems no reason to apprehend that he will not remain so until the end. With McDonald and Cleveland, or McDonald and Hewitt, or McDonald and Dorsheimer, we could afford to go to the battle confidently, even against Arthur and Foster, defying the Reids and Halsteads, the world, the flesh and the devil!"

Don Francisco DeBarea, the Spanish Minister to the United States, residing at Washington, committed suicide in New York City last week, by shooting. He was 52 years of age and left a wife and two daughters. One of the daughters is married and living in Paris, France; the other is with her mother at Sunbright, N. J. The cause of his suicide was financial embarrassments brought about by extravagant living in Washington. He was perhaps the most skillful diplomat and the most accomplished gentleman representing any of the foreign courts at Washington. He first gained renown by his brilliant writings while editor of the official journal at Madrid. From journalism he was elected to the legislative body of the government, and after filling other offices was appointed Minister to the United States. He spoke the English language fluently and was a thorough gentleman and a

The Southern Exposition.

The Great Southern Exposition at Louisville was opened on the 1st inst. with great display and imposing ceremonies. It is, without doubt, the most stupendous enterprise of the kind ever inaugurated in the South, and ranks second only to the great Philadelphia Centennial in 1876. In order that the opening might be as grand as possible, a committee was appointed some weeks ago to wait upon the President and invite him to be present. The President accepted the invitation and was present last Wednesday when the building was opened. His visit to Kentucky was the occasion of enthusiastic manifestations of welcome from the time he entered the borders of the State. All along the line of the railroad from West Virginia to Lexington and on to Louisville the people were assembled at every station to welcome the distinguished visitor with cheers and shouts. He was called out and spoke briefly at Mt. Sterling, Frankfort and other places. Upon arriving at Louisville he was taken to the Galt House and given a grand dinner on the evening of the 31st ult. The presidential party consisted of Mr. Arthur, Secretary Folger, Secretary Lincoln, Postmaster General Gresham, Commissioner Evans, Gen. Sheridan and one or two others of lesser note. Gov. Blackburn and the editors of the leading newspapers of Louisville and a few other distinguished gentlemen were also present at the dinner given at the Galt House. The party numbered but twenty-nine in all. Below we give the bill of fare, to use plain terms, and if, after reading it, any one of our readers can tell what they had for dinner, we will willingly agree to eat a similar one with him:

On the following day at 11:30 A. M., the presidential party were taken in carriages to the exposition grounds and after an address of welcome from Mayor Jacob the President was introduced by Gov. Blackburn and spoke as follows:

"I count myself fortunate that I am within the borders of this beautiful city of the South on a day which must be henceforth famous in its history; for a great undertaking—an undertaking of national interest and importance enters here and now upon its career. I congratulate the managers and promoters of this exposition, that even at this very threshold of its existence, it gives abundant pledges of success. The zeal and enthusiasm which they have displayed in their labors of preparation, and the frequent tidings of encouragement and cheer by which those labors have been lightened and made glad, the splendid triumphs of American genius, activity and skill which are arranged within these walls; the presence of the eager multitudes who through these hospitable streets—all are tokens that the enterprise here inaugurated will be crowned with brilliant, far-reaching, enduring results. It will multiply the aims of industry, better its operations and elevate its standard of attainment. By suggesting new wants it will invite new activities. It will disclose natural resources as yet almost unexplored, and point the way to their prompt and profitable development. In countless ways it will promote the arts of peace, and help to bring about the works of peace, proclaiming harmony and good will and brotherly kindness throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof. [Great Applause.]

I now declare that the Southern Exposition is open, and may God speed the fulfillment of all its lofty and ennobling purposes. [Immense applause.]

As President Arthur pulled the rope setting the machine in motion, bells rang, machinery clanged and prolonged shouts arose. There were frequent calls for "Lincoln" "Lincoln" Mr. Lincoln rose and bowed, but made no address. Gen. Sheridan sat still and did not respond to the calls upon him. The chorus of over five hundred then sang in an inspiring manner "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

The whole city of Louisville was decorated in honor of the occasion. The Courier-Journal thus describes the decorations:

"The city was robed in its finest holiday garments yesterday. Every street and every building from the heart of the city out to the quiet suburbs was gaily decorated, and a multitude of silken banners, streamers and pennants waved in every breeze or dropped from their staves in graceful folds. Looking in any direction the eye was almost dazzled with rainbow multiplicity of kaleidoscopic colors. Rows of small flags were hung out of every window; large ones floated from the housetops, or hanging over the street from third stories, almost swept the ground with their silken folds, while all the columns and other projections on the edifices were draped in the national tri-colored bunting.

The occasion was one never to be forgotten in Louisville. The exposition will continue for 100 days and Louisville will have such crowds of Hewitt, Tate and Pickett did not canvass any portion of the State and added nothing to the strength of the Democratic State ticket. They were mere figure heads to be voted for, and evidently think the only duty they owe to their party is to draw their salaries regularly and let Democrats vote for them every four years. The Democratic party in Kentucky will never be strengthened until working nominees are selected as candidates. Such apathy and indifference are inexcusable in men who have been honored with re-nominations.

Judge Thos. F. Hargis, who was a candidate for re-election to the Appellate Bench from the First District, withdrew in a card last week and will resume the practice of law, by which he thinks he can make more money. He will in conjunction with others have a law office in both Louisville and Frankfort and will devote special attention to causes in the higher courts. Judge Hargis has taken an active interest in politics and is called "Boss" Hargis in Eastern Kentucky, by those who censure him for doing so while on the Bench.

The striking telegraphers still stand firm and are confident of success. Financial aid is being extended by labor organizations all over the country. The American Rapid Co. compromised in the early part of last week by raising wages of operators ten per cent and paying more for extra time. Since their employees returned the company has doubled its business in New York. The Western Union and other companies are still defiant and determined not to compromise. The President has expressed sympathy for the strikers and from the present outlook they appear to be more than holding their own. Business is greatly retarded and in some places suits are being brought against the companies for damages caused by delays in transmitting messages.

The little Island of Ischia, with an area of 26 square miles, in the Mediterranean Sea, south of Italy, was visited by a terrible earthquake, or subsidence of the earth, on July 29th and 30th, 3,000 people were killed and 1,000 wounded. The island is a summer resort and besides the native population 2,000 visitors, including wealthy Roman and Neapolitan families, were spending the summer there. The towns of Casamicciola, Lacco, Serrara and Forio were almost entirely destroyed. The shock came with irresistible violence and was accompanied by a deafening noise. Hundreds were entombed alive or crushed by falling buildings. The work of taking out the bodies is still going on. Subscriptions have been opened throughout Italy for the relief of the survivors. At Casamicciola a play which ends with a burlesque representing an earthquake was being rendered at the theatre and although the theatre was torn down one of those in it were killed. Nearly every body else in the town was killed and the escape of the people at the theatre was almost miraculous.

Wallace Williams, col., shot and killed Henry Bradshaw, col., at Lafayette last night. He went to his house and shot him down in cold blood. The trouble was about a woman. Williams escaped.

THE RESULT.

The result of yesterday's election, given below, is nearly official. It will be seen that the Republicans carry the State ticket in the county, by 144, showing a clear loss on a strictly party vote of seven hundred votes over the vote of 1878.

The defeat of Mr. Breathitt by the Independent candidate, Mr. Brasher, while it cannot be claimed as a Democratic victory, is clearly a Republican defeat, although the race was made on the turnpike tax question. The Republicans simply failed to vote for their nominee and it is more than likely that they have sent their last Representative from this county. The party is disheartened, discouraged and disorganized and there is a brighter day ahead for the Democrats. The vote was light all over the county. Meager returns from the State indicate Knott's election by 50,000 majority.

Austin Peay, Democratic nominee for the Senate, had no opposition and is of course elected. Fifteen precincts heard from out of 22 give him 1880 votes. He has run a good deal ahead of his ticket. Ten precincts give 1731 votes for calling a convention to revise the constitution. This indicates that the question is lost, so far as this county is concerned.

"A comparison of the statement of this company with that of the preceding year will show to its patrons that the confidence extended by them to its management has not been misplaced. Its investments are judiciously made. The management, liberal and prudent in its conduct, and its ability to carry to maturity its contracts is not a matter of doubt, but always capable of a practical demonstration. It should be a matter of State pride that this institution, the only one of its kind operating under a Kentucky charter, and holding in trust such a large sum for our citizens, should be fostered and upheld by the people of this State.—Insurance Commissioners Report, 1882, pg. 5.

ALL FOR NOTHING.

"Well, what?" said Dr. E., as he entered his house, which was situated in a quiet village in central New York. "I have got back from a long and weary ride away down among the mountains, and all to no purpose whatever. The messenger said the man wouldn't live till morning, when the fact is he had only an ordinary attack of colic. If the simple remedy I had only had time enough to put a HENRY'S CAPSULE FORGOTTEN PASTURE on his stomach he would have been all right in an hour or two. But some folks are slow to learn," added the old physician, sighing over the case, "and it is a pity that his wife had just passed for him."

Dr. E. was right, yet people do learn, even though slowly. The rapidly increasing use of Henry's capsules proves this beyond question, and the good doctors are certain to have much of their needless toil. In all diseases capable of being affected by a purgative, Henry's capsules are efficient, and at once.
